

FELLOWS MUST WORK NOW.

NO LONGER ANY EXCUSE FOR NOT TRYING THE BOODLERS.

Gov. Hill Orders an Extraordinary Term of the Court of Oyer and Terminer—That Court, by the Way, Has Not Done Much This Year—A Chance for the Colonel to Pay for His Vacations.

Should a District Attorney fail to faithfully prosecute persons indicted for bribery, he may be removed by the Governor, under a provision of the constitution.

THE EVENING WORLD called Col. John R. Fellows' attention to this fact recently and he pleaded as his reason for not prosecuting the bribe-givers and bribe-takers of 1884 the overcrowded condition of the criminal court calendars.

Col. Fellows is now forcibly reminded of THE EVENING WORLD's warning, as Gov. Hill has ordered an extraordinary term of the Court of Oyer and Terminer for Jan. 21, 1889.

It is thought that Gov. Hill has appointed this extraordinary term of court to remove the only excuse for excuse which New York's District Attorney might put forward as a reason for his failure to try the boodlers.

Col. Fellows is to be given every opportunity to "faithfully prosecute" the men who have so long labored under indictments for bribery, as the constitution requires.

Should he fail, as he has failed during the first year of his term, it rests with the Governor to remove him, as the constitution provides he may.

That the plea of Col. Fellows that he had no court in which to move the trial of a boodle indictment was merely a plea shown by an examination of the record of the proceedings of the Court of Oyer and Terminer during the year 1888.

The February term was the first. It convened on Feb. 6 and adjourned without doing any business, until Feb. 13, when John Cardoner was placed on trial for murder.

Nothing else occurred during that term except the Squire-Flynn case.

The April term of the court was as barren of business until April 23, when the indictment against Thomas B. Kerr was moved for trial.

This was the only boodle trial of the year and consumed the time of the Court until June 2, when the jury failed to agree.

For the June term there was no calendar until June 11, when John R. Dunn was tried for his participation in the Manhattan Bank defalcation.

Murderers Charles Giblin and Colden Robinson were also tried during this term. Practically, nothing was done at either the September, October, November or December terms of the Court.

The Grand Jury handed up a hundred or more indictments and the trial of a number of cases and moved the trial of indictments to the Court of Oyer and Terminer, he could have disposed of a great mass of business with which it is claimed the District Attorney's office is now laboring.

A prominent Tammany Hall man said this morning:

"It was said that there was rejoicing in Montreal over the election of Col. Fellows. He has been charged with being their friend and he certainly has not prosecuted those who were in the jurisdiction of the Court with much vim during this first year of his term."

"He now has a court in which he need move nothing but 'boodle' indictments, and he can get the trial of his hands if he 'faithfully prosecutes' them as the Constitution provides."

There are Richmond and Kerr and ex-Aldermen Farley, Cleary, McQuinn, Pearson, Wendel and Kirk, all of whom he can summon for trial, and if he doesn't there will exist the best reason in the world for his removal from office."

The regular term of Oyer and Terminer will convene Feb. 4, and the regular business which cannot be disposed of in the General Sessions can be brought before that Court.

A great deal of work has been done out for Col. Fellows, and he now has a chance to repay the people for the numerous vacations which he has enjoyed.

Col. Fellows is enjoying holiday week away from the cares of office and could not be found at the General Sessions building to-day.

It was rumored there that the extraordinary session was called by the Government at the solicitation of Col. Fellows, who had a conference with Gov. Hill at Albany recently, and that only boodle cases will be moved for trial before Judge Daniels.

HER HEART IS LOST.

Mrs. McCrea Missed It After a Gay Theatre Party.

LORT—At Palmer's Theatre, evening Dec. 25, small diamond heart party captured upper box on left. Lort, reward for return to Cambridge, 334 5th ave., room 40.

Mrs. A. S. McCrea, the lady who lost her diamond heart, had not arisen when an Evening World reporter called at her apartments this morning. A knock at the door was answered by a lady companion of Mrs. McCrea, who opened the door just wide enough to display her head and a peep at a white garment.

When questioned about the loss, she said that they had attended the theatre in a party on Christmas night, and upon arriving home her friend discovered that she had lost the heart which she had been wearing. It was a very valuable piece of jewelry and worth about $600.

They have not yet notified the police, but are in hopes that the libel which is offered will attract the finder to return the ornament, which by the way is a souvenir.

Put Where He Will Not Frighten Women.

(SPECIAL TO THE EVENING WORLD.) NEW BEDFORD, Mass., Dec. 27.—John Smith, one of the men who is supposed to be in the habit of assaulting and frightening women in this city for the past few weeks, assaulted Susan Ebel on North Second street about 9 o'clock last evening, while intoxicated, and this morning he was sent to the House of Correction for three months.

Mother and Babe to the Island.

Rose Flanagan, a young woman of nineteen, arrested last night on Attorney street in an intoxicated condition, with a ten-month-old babe under her shawl, told Justice Gorman in Essex Market Court to-day that she was a soldier's wife, and that her husband had gone to the front. She was sent to the island for six months and was allowed to take her baby with her.

A Victim of the Recent Campaign.

(SPECIAL TO THE EVENING WORLD.) PITTSBURGH, Pa., Dec. 27.—James T. Moffett, member of the present Congress from the Twenty-fifth Pennsylvania District, has been admitted to the insane asylum at North Warren as a private patient. The difficulty seems to be excessive nervousness, which was brought on by the arduous labors of the recent campaign.

SHOT AFTER SHE PRAYED.

KITTY VAN WINKLE CARRIED WOUNDED INTO FLORENCE MISSION.

She Left the Mission at 1.30 A. M. After Joining 400 Other Women in Prayer, Praise and Testimony—Hour Later she Was Found Bleeding from a Mysterious Pistol Wound.

The Florence Mission, at 21 Bleeker street, was the scene of gayety last night and almost of a tragedy early this morning.

There gathered in the dining-room of the Mission last night nearly 400 women of all degrees, types and conditions, who were furnished with a Christmas dinner, preceded and followed by prayer, experience and praise meetings in the modest chapel of the institution.

Among the early callers was Kitty Van Winkle, a petite blonde, who even now bears traces of early refinement and beauty. Kitty left the house about 1.30 A. M. after the religious exercises, ostensibly to return to her room at 44 Great Jones street.

At 2.30 o'clock in the morning Kitty staggered up to Mammie Smith, an older and more depraved sister in sin, who was walking in the Bowers, near Grand street, and grasped her by the arm. Kitty was pale and trembling and blood was flowing from her left arm.

"Take me to the Florence Mission," she said.

"What is the matter?" exclaimed Mammie. "I have been shot," said Kitty, "but don't ask me who did it or where it happened," feebly moaned the injured girl.

Mammie took Kitty to her arm and supported her until they reached the Mission building.

Detective Leeson, of the Mercer street station, came, and when Kitty had related, questioned her as to how and by whom she was shot, but the girl was obtuse, and, if shot by a man, she was determined to shield him, and positively declined to give any information.

Kitty was taken to St. Vincent's Hospital and is doing well. The police think generally that Kitty shot herself, and, becoming frightened at the flow of blood, placed her hand being sent to the hospital from the Mission to dropping in the street.

THE SIXTH'S SENATORSHIP.

Tom Grady Opposed by Citizens and Republicans.

Ex-Senator Thomas F. Grady, the United Democratic nominee for the Sixth's Senatorship, is not likely to have the big walk-over that he expected.

To-morrow the election will take place, and by 4 P. M. the fight will be decided.

The Republicans had given it out all along that they would not put a candidate in nomination.

But Mr. Grady is not more popular than the law allows, his desertion in 1884, when he went for Ben Butler, making him many enemies. These now claim that he was working in the interest of Mr. Blaine.

This and other reasons brought about a conference between District and his many independent citizens, who made a proposition to the Republicans that if they would put up a good man for the office the Independents would support him.

So last night the Republicans nominated Mr. Charles L. Halberstadt, a lawyer at 25 Chambers street.

Mr. Halberstadt is quite popular in the Twelfth Assembly District and has many friends. An amusing feature of this little campaign is the nomination of another Mr. Thomas F. Grady, who is now in the business, by some of his Republican friends.

The nomination was probably intended as a first-class political joke.

PASTOR DOWNS'S SON ASSAULTED.

Who Is the Mysterious Assailant of the Noted Minister's Son?

(SPECIAL TO THE EVENING WORLD.) BOSTON, Dec. 27.—Cornelius Downs, oldest son of Rev. W. W. Downs, of Somerville, has, according to his own statement, been the victim of several mysterious and unwarrantable assaults recently.

"The Saturday evening before Thanksgiving," he says, "about 8 o'clock, I was walking up the hill on Harvard street, when a man who was standing by a tree on the other side of the road jumped out and chased me. I was frightened and ran home as fast as I could go. I could not see his face plainly, but remembered his general appearance. Two weeks later I was coming up the same street in company with my little brother, Milton, when I saw the man again. He started for us, but we rushed into Mr. Robinson's house near by and he went off."

About a week later I was coming up Harvard street again, about 6.30 o'clock, when we met again. He grabbed me with both hands and said: 'Now I've got you, if you make any noise I will kill you.' He then took a razor from his pocket. He then said: 'Give me your glove,' which he took. He then struck me, knocking me down and ran off. I went home and told my mother, and he reported the case to the police."

Wednesday evening young Downs was found on the sidewalk on Harvard street, and upon being taken up and carried home he said he had again been knocked down by the strange man. The case was covered. At the Somerville police, who are now investigating it.

Trying to Defraud His Own Daughter.

(SPECIAL TO THE EVENING WORLD.) MONTREAL, Dec. 27.—Miss Carrie Miller, a handsome young lady of twenty-two, has brought suit against her father to recover $20,000 and real estate which was left her by her mother. Mr. Miller gave his daughter a sign a paper authenticating all claims to her mother's estate, since which Miss Miller has been without a home except that provided by friends.

He Flashed for Clothing.

Charles Renno, of 58 Bowers, while in a closet in a saloon at 29 Bowers last night threw a fish line over a partition and catching the hook into some clothing that lay on a table managed to get hold of a coat before his game was discovered. At the Bunk Police Court to-day he was held for trial.

Heavy Snowstorm in the West.

(SPECIAL TO THE EVENING WORLD.) CHICAGO, Dec. 27.—Reports from the interior of this State, Wisconsin and Iowa announce the prevalence of a heavy snowstorm. In some places over a foot of snow has fallen, and a heavy blizzard has caused had drifts, delaying railroad trains and impeding travel on highways.

Fell in the Bowers Spider's Web.

Michael Sullivan, a countryman from Rockaway Beach, had Peter Hanlon and Charles Black held for trial at the Tombs to-day for swindling amount of $147. He said he came to town last evening, and the men invited him into a museum on the Bowers, where they fled him.

GAMBLERS ON UNCLE SAM'S GROUND.

An Exciting Game of "Craps" Played in a Post-Office Alcove.

Eight boys on their knees in a circle in one of the Park Row alcoves of the granite Post-Office with their heads in the centre attracted the attention of an EVENING WORLD reporter this morning.

A middle-aged man, with long, brown beard, was pacing up and down, occasionally stooping to look indignantly at the kneeling group and again to gaze up and down the street.

This was Dr. Durland, and he was looking for that hidden thing when he got it, a New York policeman, and he was gambling.

The reporter entered the spacious alcove and looked on and waited for developments. The boys were black and white, or, rather, were once white, and at least five nations were represented.

They played with two dice, and the stake was made up of pennies, which they tossed carefully on the stone.

The reporter watched, but the game was a mystery. "What is the game?" he asked.

"Craps," was the laconic reply of a colored bootblack, who never lifted his eyes from the game.

But a hunchbacked newsboy not more than ten years of age, scrambling to get from him with "Say, boss, lend me two cents till I go in again."

The reporter shook his head gravely and asked: "How much can you win or lose at craps?"

"Million dollars, if you play big enough," replied the little hunchback, adding, beseechingly: "Come on, boss, stake a feller! I lost my paper money, and I'm broke."

At this point a Post-Office employee rushed out and at the ragged gamblers and the boys scampored in all directions, not, however, until one of the very headed, colored boy, had gathered up the six or eight pennies in the "pot" and the cubical implements of the gamblers.

Dr. Durland looked relieved, but declared that the police ought to stop the gambling, and could if they would.

"SILVER DOLLAR'S" RECOMMEND.

He Will Receive a $1,800 Diamond Pin and a "Character" Next Saturday Night.

"Silver Dollar" Charley Smith's constituents of the Eighth Assembly District have clabbed together and made all necessary arrangements to send their favorite to Albany with a "character."

They think, perhaps, that "Silver Dollar" needs some encouragement to stand up in the Assembly chamber and take the iron-clad oath of office after the threat of the Reform Club to prosecute him for perjury should he do so.

This "character" is to be conferred on big Charley, apparently not by politicians, but will seem to come unsought from an entirely different source. It was arranged by Johnny O'Brien, of Brooklyn, Barney Bourke and the rest of the Eighth District "gang" of Republican bosses and heelers, nevertheless.

On next Saturday evening "Silver Dollar" will, for the first time in a year, attend the annual reception of the Independent Warshawer Sick Support Society, a Hebrew benevolent organization, at 190 Madison street, of which he is a member.

There he will be surprised (?) by the presentation of a $1,800 diamond pin, the money to buy which was raised by the "gang."

After the presentation of this gem emblematical of Silver Dollar's political purity, the party will be regaled with $1,000 worth of champagne, the money to purchase which has also been raised by the "gang."

[From the Washington Post.] "You are a highwayman," exclaimed an irate citizen to a short cut dealer. "Oh, no, I'm not," was the pleasant reply. "I'm a low-rented man."

NO PISTOLS JUST YET.

Mr. O'Donohue and Mr. Selickson Show a Preference for Lawyers.

The little unpleasantness growing out of transactions on the Coffee Exchange, in which Herman Selickson, a well-known operator, and Joseph J. O'Donohue, coffee merchant and leading Tammany chief, are the central figures, because of offensive epithets on the part of one of the gentlemen, in the subject of much gossip in downtown speculative circles.

Mr. O'Donohue has put the matter in the hands of Lawyer McManus, and Mr. Selickson will probably have an opportunity to show cause why he should not pay heavy damages for alleged defamation of character.

Mr. Selickson was the man who had inspired the publication of a story in a morning newspaper, and that "the man who inspired that article is a liar, a scoundrel and a dirty black-guard."

A son of Mr. O'Donohue said his father had nothing to say; his lawyer would attend to the matter.

Mr. Selickson, who is a handsome man, said: "I have nothing to say; the other fellow does all the talking."

Members of the Coffee Exchange said to-day that Mr. Selickson was good for the $1,000 which he said would pay to any charitable institution if Mr. O'Donohue sued him. Both gentlemen have excellent financial standing, according to reports.

BROOKLYN NEWS.

Mr. J. P. Hughes Tells a Story of Highway Robbery on Main Street.

The First Precinct police are investigating a story of highway robbery made by James P. Hughes, of 298 Jay street.

"I was standing on Main near Water street last evening," says Mr. Hughes, "when three men came along, and after knocking me down lifted me up and carried me to a hallway in Water street. I became unconscious, and when I awoke my gold hunting-case watch was missing."

Morris Moriarty, of 33 Main street, was to-day arrested on suspicion, and is held until Mr. Hughes is sufficiently recovered to identify him.

John Morris, a laborer, was arrested this morning at his home, 149 Freeman street, on requisition from the Governor of Pennsylvania, in which he is charged with embezzling $2,500 from Annie E. Lichtig of Philadelphia.
